

Once upon a time there was a rabbit and he was looking for a nice place to live. This rabbit was no ordinary rabbit he would pull pranks on all the creatures around him. One time he was jealous of another rabbit's home so when the rabbit went inside his hole he covered it all up with dirt and it took him days to dig out. Another time he found a bear that had the best honey in the forest, the bear had it in this big jar, so one time rabbit decided to sneak it out and replace it with glue. The bear wasn't able to eat for days, while he enjoyed the honey. None of the animals liked the rabbit but they wouldn't do anything because they were afraid to be outsmarted. One time he found a good place to live at near a river, but rabbit was selfish, and didn't like the fact that there were two other deer living around there. Rabbit wanted to be the only one, so he decided to pull another one of his pranks. Rabbit found out that the deer lived on opposite sides of the river, Rabbit went to one of the deer and challenged him to a tug of war. He told the deer "I bet I could pull harder than you can, I bet you I could pull you into the water." The deer felt insulted so he took the challenge. But then he made a proposal, Rabbit said, "If I pull you into the water you have to go, but if you pull me in I'll leave." The deer felt very confident so he took the challenge. After that the Rabbit made the same deal to the deer on the other side of the river. He told both deer the same thing "I'll hand you this end of the vine then wait till I get to the other side of

"The river to give you the signal that im ready"

As soon as both deer had held each end, Rabbit gave a signal and both deer started pulling. Both deer felt like they underestimated the strength of the rabbit. Little did they know they were going against each other. Rabbit thought it was funny so he let out a big laugh. When both deer heard this and saw that rabbit was at the top of a hill watching they felt humiliated. Both deer met and decide to get rabbit at his own game. One time when Rabbit was sleeping the deer went over and shaved all his hair off, and threw the hair in the water so he wouldnt be able to put it back. Every were Rabbit would go they would laugh because of how funny he looked, Rabbit then looked at his reflection in the water and saw that he was hairless. He felt sad because he now knew wat it felt like to be fooled, and sad because nobody wanted to be with him. So one day he decided to appologize to all the animals he pranked, and became friends with everyone, and was finnaly able to live in his new home at peace.