

The

Nicole Atilano

Adventures of Pepay the mouse
Journey to the mysterious box

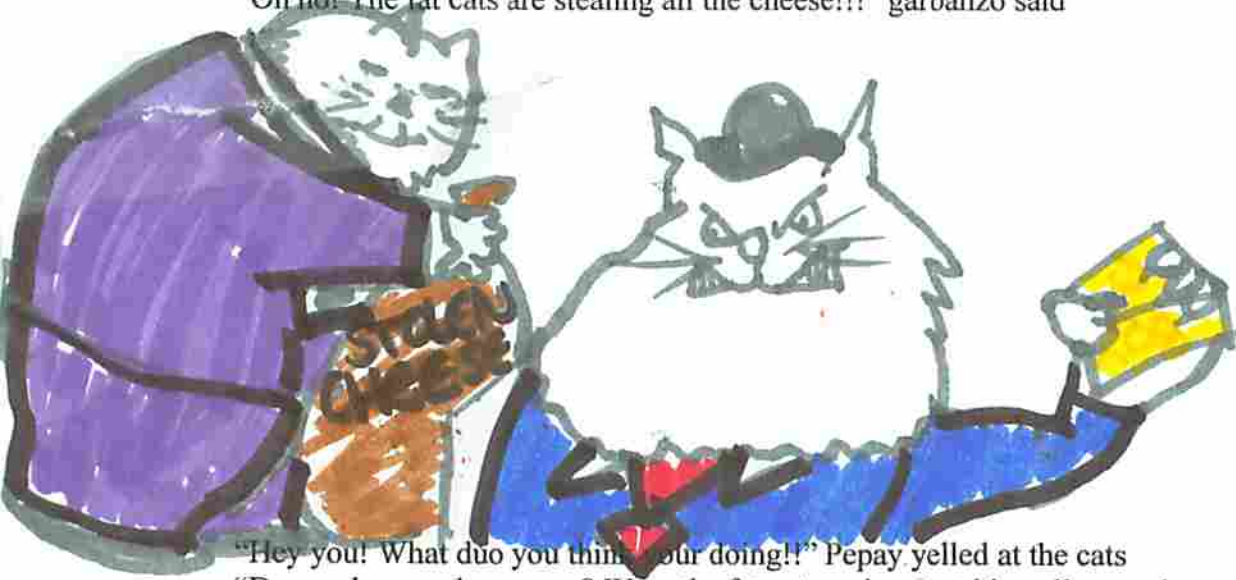

The town of chestberry was a quite beautiful place. It was home to hundreds of mice. Pepay a garden mouse; the smallest mouse in chestberry was a brave and daring mouse. He would play nights and dragons and dream of adventuring out into the world beyond chestberry. But no mice ever left chestberry and made it back to tell the story.

Pepay attended Applesworth elementary. Every week apples worth elementary had grilled cheese Wednesdays. Grilled cheese was the most popular item in the cafeteria making Wednesdays in the cafeteria full of chouse. Every mouse boy and girl made sure to be at school on Wednesdays to get a grilled cheese.

This Wednesday was different the smell of grilled cheese dint fill the hallways like usual. The children got to the cafeterias only to find the fat cats stealing all there cheese. The fat cats were always messing something up and causing trouble in apples wroth.

“Oh no! The fat cats are stealing all the cheese!!!” garbanzo said

“Hey you! What duo you think your doing!!” Pepay yelled at the cats

“Do you know who we are? Were the fat cats and were taking all your cheese and there’s nothing you can do about it. Besides you’re a garden mouse the smallest kind of mouse in town” the fat cats said

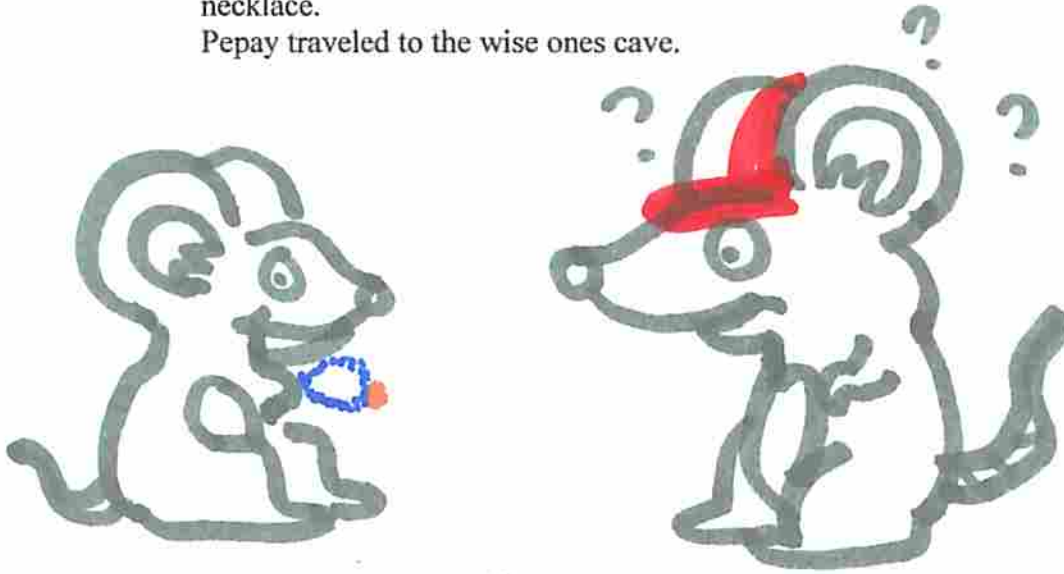

“But im brave and can do anything!” Pepay said

“HA! You’ll never leave chestberry. No one will ever have grilled cheese again.” The fat cats left and walked away with all the cheese.

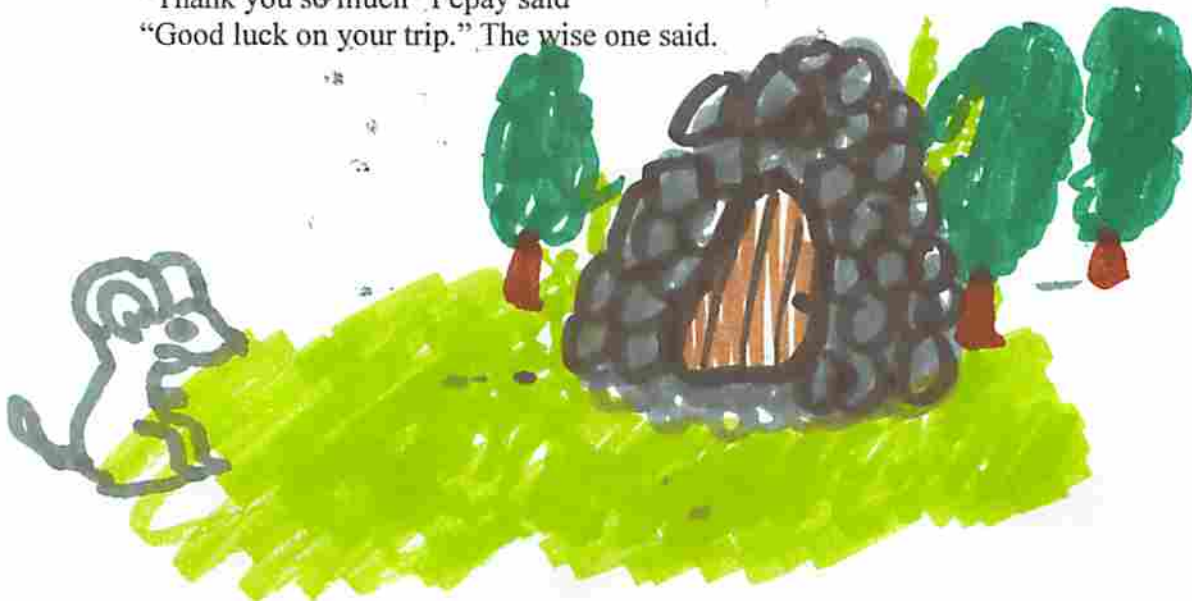

All the mice at apples worth elementary were sad. Every one lover there cheese especially grilled cheese. How would the people of Applesworth get there calcium? Everyone was worried.

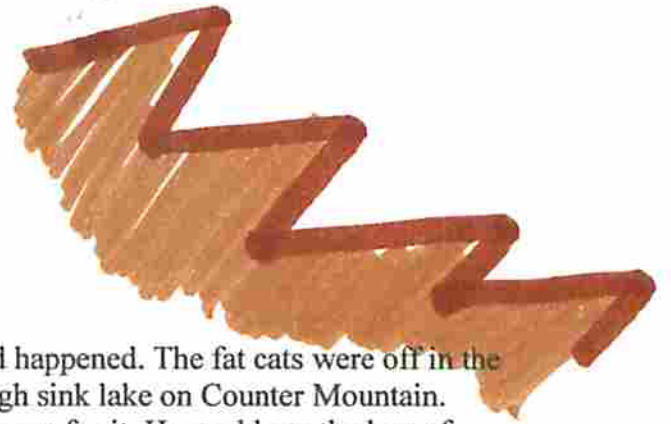

“Garbanzo! You’re my best friend tell me what we should do! We need to get more cheese for the town, but I dot know what to do!” Said Pepay
“You can’t leave chestberry! No one ever comes back, and was so small. We have no chance!!!” Garbanzo said in despair
“I can make it! I’m the bravest mouse in chestberry even though I might be the smallest”
Pepay said
“See the wise one; he will know where you need to go. I wish you the best of luck. Take my necklace it will help you on your journey!” Garbanzo said handing Pepay the necklace.
Pepay traveled to the wise ones cave.

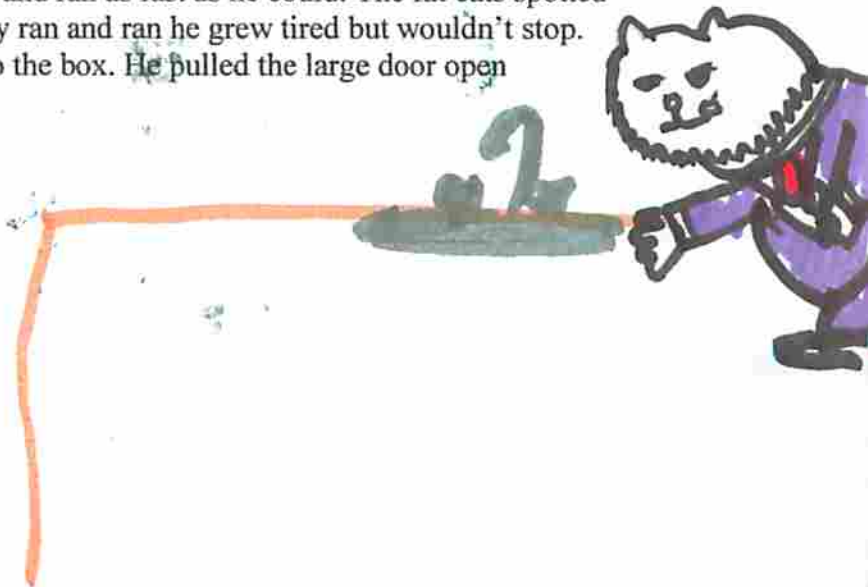

“Wise one is you there?” Pepay said through the door?
“Yes son. You have come about the cheese have you now?” the wise one said wisely.
“Yes! How did you know!” Pepay said amazed
“I am the wise one. Your journey will be hard and long. You must cross the hills of the dragons back then the valley of the glossy ground. You will then come to the mysterious box. Inside you will find the wall of goods. Only once you reach the very top you will find the land of the cheese.”
The wise one said as he made Pepay a map.
“Thank you so much” Pepay said
“Good luck on your trip.” The wise one said.

Pepay packed his things and set out on his voyage. No one in Applesworth expected to see him back. Besides his best friend garbanzo. Pepay soon came to the hills of the dragons back. They were high and made of brown wood. They were the strangest hills Pepay had ever seen. He climbed down one after another until he finally reached the bottom. The valley of glossy lands came next; it looked like it went on forever. Pepay had traveled across the glossy lands far but hadn't reached the other side. He decided to stop and take a nap.

A crash woke Pepay up. He looked to see what had happened. The fat cats were off in the distance they had knocked over a bowl from the high sink lake on Counter Mountain. Pepay new they would spot im soon. He decided to run for it. He could see the box of mystery near by. Pepay grabbed his bag and ran as fast as he could. The fat cats spotted him and started to chase after him. Pepay ran and ran he grew tired but wouldn't stop. The cats were close but Pepay made it to the box. He pulled the large door open

The wall of goods was high and the cats were close behind. Pepay thought about what an adventure would do. He grabbed the necklace off his neck and flung it around a jug inside the mysterious box. He lifted himself up. The fat cats were left at the bottom. He had gotten away. Pepay still had a ways to go till he reached the top. He climbed and climbed for hours passing sticks of butter and bowls of pasta on the way up.

Pepay had finally made it. He crawled over the last ledge. Pepay had arrived, the land of cheese was more glorious than he had ever imagined. Clumps of mozzarella mounds of cheddar and piles of brie laid scattered around. Pepay was so happy he packed up all the different kinds of cheese and wrapped it up to go.

The fat cats were still at the bottom waiting for Pepay to come down. He knew they would have him for lunch if they caught him. Pepay grabbed a toothpick and string from his back pack and made a tightrope across to the hills on the dragons back. He slid right over the fat cats heads with the bag of cheese in hand. After climbing back up the hills on the dragons back Pepay finally made it home.

The mice of chestberry were thrilled to see him. No one had believed in Pepay the small garden mouse. But all the towns' people realized he was the bravest mouse in all chestberry and the only one who had ever venture out into the world and made it back in one piece. All the towns people wanted to hear about Pepay's adventure. And from that day on he was know as Pepay the great. And chestberry had all the cheese they could ever want. And the mice of chestberry lived happily ever after with there cheese.

